

ArchAtlas: Submission Guidelines for Authors

1. Slide Images

Visual essays in the ArchAtlas journal are primarily visual, hence slides should be of a high quality and scholarly nature. Any relevant images may be used (with due attribution and permissions - see Copyright below). In addition to other image types, ArchAtlas encourages contributors to make use of remotely sensed imagery and textured GIS mapping data in their slides to frame the spatial relationships and explanations in a more textured, informative and engaging way. While the text of the visual essays frames the particular arguments of your essay, the careful use of satellite imagery enables multiple readings of the slides as readers can both take account of the labelled features and make their own interpretations from the surrounding backdrop of the imagery.

FORMAT

- Powerpoint format: .PPT slide images. Images will appear on the page in the slide's format.
- or
- Sequence of numbered JPEGs or TIFFs: not to exceed 1000 pixels in width.

LIST OF CAPTIONS

A list of short captions may be included for figures and Powerpoint slides, numbered and related to filenames/PPT files. These should correspond to the figure numbers in the text. Captions should be kept short, approximately 1-2 sentences in length, and contain relevant copyright information if necessary (see Copyright below). These captions are separate from the main text (below). Optionally, captions may also be incorporated into the slides themselves.

2. Main Text

The main text is the framework script for the visual essay showing the order of the slides and framing the arguments text that surrounds.

- Submitted as a Word document (.doc or .docx); or Rich Text Format (.rtf)
- The document should include:
 - a full title (including subtitles)
 - a shortened title (no more than 6 words)
 - your name as you wish it to appear
 - your institutional affiliation
- Subheadings should be clearly marked.
- Abbreviations should be kept to a minimum.
- Foreign or unusual characters highlighted.
- Single quotation marks (double inverted commas should be reserved for a quotation within a quotation).
- Spellings should follow the Concise Oxford Dictionary.

MARKING SLIDE IMAGES WITHIN TEXT

Within square brackets, the sequence of slide images should be marked with corresponding numbers to the list of figures (eg. [Fig. 1] or [Slide 1]). Also note that a list of short captions may accompany the list of figures (see above).
